Cruel king, condemned queen

by MiaQc

Summary

A short story about a cruel king who punishes his queen for falling in love with someone else.

- A translation of Roi cruel, reine condamnée by MiaQc

In a kingdom lived a cruel and evil king. He married a peasant girl to be his queen. He behaved differently with her than with the rest of his subjects. He was attentive, kind and showed no sign of his cruelty. The king promised her everything she desired as long as she never broke the one rule he imposed on her: not to fall in love with anyone other than him.

Unfortunately for him, his queen never loved him. When his guards told him they had seen the queen with a peasant, the king did not intervene. His queen could be friends with whomever she wanted. But when the guards then told him they had seen the queen kissing this man passionately, the king's rage boiled over.

He locks his queen in his “chamber of pleasures” and rapes her repeatedly. No matter how much the queen begs him to stop, her cruel husband refuses to listen.

“My queen, you have only one rule to follow. Only one!”

“But I do not love him, I swear!”

“Liar! Why did you kiss him if you do not love him?”

The queen remains silent. She knows she is doomed. The king continues to penetrate her pussy with his cock, to enter her asshole, to finger her nipples, to force his penis into her mouth, to wet his fingers in her moist pussy.

“You will be my pleasure toy for eternity, my queen!”

The cruel king continues to fuck her. He tells the rest of the world that his queen is dead so that he can keep her for himself. Sometimes the king makes her drink a potion that causes milk to rise in her breasts and his tongue delights in the white liquid.

The poor queen will never see the sun again. She knows that her king will kill her sooner or later. He has never forgiven traitors.
